Now a different kind of question...

Some people leave school early to get jobs and earn money. Others stay on at school, to get skills and training that they hope will lead to good jobs and high earnings in the future.

```

||      ||
||=====|| $120,000
||      ||
||=====|| $80,000
||      ||
||=====|| $60,000
||      ||

```

Here is an income ladder. Someone who left school when they were 15, after finishing year 9, earns about $22,000 a year by the time they are adult - say in their thirties. That would be about $420 a week before tax.

```

||=====|| $50,000
||      ||
||=====|| $40,000
||      ||
||=====|| $30,000
||      ||
||=====|| $25,000
||      ||

```

-- Left school at 15, after year 9

```

||=====|| $20,000
||      ||
||=====|| $15,000
||      ||
||      ||

```

Now how about people who stayed on longer at school, how much extra do you think they ought to be paid - we are not asking how much they actually do earn but how much you think they ought to earn...

1a. First, a typical person who stayed on at school until year 12 -- someone who is just about as hard working and about as smart as most other year 12 students -- how much should they earn by the time they are in their thirties? $ _____ per year...

b. How about a typical person who finished year 12 and went on to take a one year certificate course at a college of technical and further education (TAFE) -- someone who is just about as hard working and as smart as most others who did this -- how much should they earn in their thirties? $ _____ per year...

c. And a typical person who finished year 12 and then did a two year diploma course at a college of advanced education (CAE) -- what should they earn in their thirties? $ _____ per year...

d. What about a typical university graduate who did a three year degree course? $ _____ per year...

e. Finally, a typical person who finished a three year course at university and then went on another three years to take a higher degree -- what should they earn in their thirties? $ _____
